Devastating Fire In Delhi

Loss Estimated To Rs. 20 Lakhs

NEW DELHI, May 28 (UPI).

A DEVASTATING fire broke out in the Hazari Market this evening and gutted nineteen shops in which some films were stored. the loss is estimated at Rs. 20 lakhs. There was no loss of life.

The fire was first noticed at about 5 p.m. In less than half hour it destroyed nineteen shops containing the highly inflammable material. The fire brigade which reached the spot promptly, could do nothing more than saving the seven adjacent film godowns.

While the cause of the fire has not yet been established, it is believed to be "sheer accident". A spokesman of the Delhi Police said that it was quite probable that the excessive heat in Delhi's temperature might have caused the fire.

It may be recalled that about eight months back a fire had occurred in a film godown in the thickly populated area of Chandni Chowk resulting in the death of 14 persons. Immediately after that fire the authorities had ordered the removal of film godowns from that area to Hazari.

KARACHI, May 28 (UPI)—To save the life of a stranded pigeon, the sealed store room of Kaycee Industries Ltd., in Lakshmi Building on Bunder Road was yesterday opened under orders of the Deputy City Collector of Karachi.

The store room was sealed few days ago and it seemed to have "imprisoned" a lone pigeon who had accidently strayed in. Signs of throbing life inside the locked room were noticed yesterday morning when the flutter of wings aroused the curiosity of neighbours. The faithful mate of the "imprisoned" pigeon which trailed it to the room raised a "hue and cry" before the locked door. Frantic messages were sent to the Deputy City Collector who then ordered the door to be opened and the lone pigeon winged out to freedom with his mate.

COMMONWEALTH AID TO BURMA TOO SMALL

Thakin Nu's Regret: Move To Secure Foreign Capital

CALCUTTA, May 28. (PTI).

BURMESE Prime Minister Thakin Nu said here today that the Commonwealth aid to Burma was too small to be used for reconstruction purposes. He felt that the loan might be used for general administrative purposes.

"But," he said, "we had no need to draw on the six million sterling loan so far."

The Prime Minister, who was addressing press correspondents, said: "We have not asked any particular source for loans to rebuild our economy. But we have declared that foreign capital is welcome to Burma. No particular approach has been made to any country, but some of our representatives abroad have had talks with countries interested in investment outside. No concrete result has, however, come out as yet."

REBELS

Thakin Nu reiterated his earlier declaration to bring back complete peace in Burma by the target date of July 19 this year. But he was not so very hopeful of the total defeat of Communist insurgents by that time.

"There may be some isolated pockets of resistance, but I can say definitely that the backbone of the rebels would be very much broken by that date", he said.

The Prime Minister told that the offer of autonomy to Karens within the Burmese Union still stood. "They will be granted general amnesty if they lay down their arms", he said adding that there had already been divisions in Karen ranks.

Thakin Nu was delighted at the prospect of Pandit Nehru's coming visit to Rangoon on his way back from Indonesia. They had invited the Indian Prime Minister to Burma long before and would now be "very glad" if Pandit Nehru would stay for some days in Burma, he said.

PEACE RALLY ENDS WITHOUT INCIDENT

WESTERN ALLIES' FEARS PROVE GROUNDLESS

BERLIN, May 28 (PTI-Reuter).

EAST GERMANY'S great "Free German Youth" Peace Rally, for which the West had mobilised to keep law and order, wound up today without incident after a parade lasting more than seven hours.

Now in sunshine, now in rain, half a million Whitsun "peace rally" marchers kept the peace with marked cheerfulness and enthusiasm all along the 25 miles boundary dividing East and West Berlin.

The only "bang" was a leaflet bomb, believed fired from the West of the city, which burst over the heads of the Communist-led demonstrators scattering printed warning against "Russian slavery".

Bugles woke the demonstrators at 4 a.m. for the huge parade which got underway early.

As the youths in blue and white uniforms struck off down the beeflagged Unter Den Linden, 200 doves. Symbols of peace, were released. They winged round and then made off for home over the ruins of the former Kaiser's palace.

TENSION SLIPS

The tension of weeks, heightened by the West German allegations that the Communists would use the "peace rally" to "invade and capture" the western sectors, started to slip away with the dawn.

Among the 25,000 West Berlin police and Allied troops, stationed for trouble along the sector boundary, one West sector police officer crossed over the line before the demonstration began, and saluting his East sector opposite number, shook hands and amiably discussed the day's task of helping law and order.

Girl marchers apparently had nothing more on their minds than the manner in which early, scattered rains had upset their haid-dos.

The American, British and French military leaders who all went up in helicopters to survey the scene, only found that the main street of the Russian sector of the city was shimmering with all the colours of the rainbow.

Carrying blue banners of the Free German Youth, the red black gold flag of the German Republic, red flags and white flags, Communist youth swung past the tribune on which Government leaders and foreign delegations took the salute.

THE SLOGANS

Some blue-shirted marchers carried big banners reading "Yankee go home" "No freedom of the press for warmongers" and "Learn from Stalin, fight with Stalin".

From the first light of day, steel helmeted American, British and French troops were on guard, though in the background, while radio equipped armoured cars patrolled the streets.

Facing them from the other side of the border—on the opposite side of the street—were black uniformed East Berlin people's police. Their orders were to prevent any of the demonstrating youths from crossing into the Western sector.

NO INCIDENTS

The Anglo-American-French combined news centre set up to collect reports on the situation on the East-West sector border, late in the day had no incidents to report.

Bulletins issued almost every hour showed that everything was quiet.

East German Communist President Wilhelm Pieck, addressing the blue-shirted "young fighters for peace" before they began their march, told them not to "underestimate the dangers of another war"

JAGJIWAN RAM TO LEAD INDIAN DELEGATION TO GENEVA TALKS

Studying Labour Conditions On The Continent

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

NEW DELHI, May 28.

THE Labour Minister, Mr. Jagjiwan Ram will lead the Indian delegation to the next Session of the International Labour Conference, opening at Geneva on June 7. He is leaing New Delhi on June 2. Industrial Relations, machinery for fixing minimum wages in Agriculture, equal wage for equal work, and vocational training are some of the important items on the agenda of the Conference, in which India is interested.

India has an Industrial Relations Bill, now pending before the Union Parliament. The Labour Ministry has appointed a Research Officer to collect and tabulate all public reactions to the Bill. Some of its objectionable features such as the right of the Government to revise or amend an industrial award may be delated at the Select Committee stage of the Bill.

India already has Minimum Wages Act and Fair Wage Bill is due for introduction during the Autumn Session of the Parliament. The Minimum Wages Act provides that minimum wages shall be fixed for agriculture labour by April 1951. A committee is now engaged in investgiating the wage structure of the agriculture Labour.

India's Constitution provides for equal wages for equal work by debarring discrimination on grounds of sex, caste or creed. There is already equality of wages in piecework. India, it will be thus seen, has already taken steps to ensure equal wage for equal work.

As per vocational training is concerned, India has a training Centre at Bilaspur, which is first of its kind in Asia. Government of India has recently been approached by Burma and Ceylon to train their personnel at this Institution.

It will be thus seen that India has a very strong case to justify its position as the founder-Member of I.L.O. (International Labour Organisation).

The Government of India has not been happy over the implementation of the Labour legislation. The new Constitution, however, gives the Government of India power to direct, and supervise Labour Legislation. It is proposed to make specific provision in the Labour Bills to arm the Central Government with this power in the future.

The Labour Minister, Mr. Jigjiwan Ram proposes to visit Czechoslavakia, Denmark, Sweden, West-Germany, Italy, France and England, before returning to India by the Middle of July, his object being to study from close quarters the system of payment of wages by price-rates linked with profit-sharing, Co-operative movement, housing and rehabilitation.

MADHYA BHARAT CAPITAL ISSUE

Sardar Against Chief Justice's Arbitration

(From Our Correspondent).

INDORE, May 28.—Sardar Patel has, it is reliably understood, expressed his inability to entrust the question of finding out a suitable place for locating permanent capital of Madhya Bharat to the Chief Justice of India.

The Executive Committee of the Madhya Bharat Provincial Congress Committee, it may be recalled, had last week unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the Chief Justice of India to arbitrate in the capital dispute.

Sardar Patel is reported to have stated in a letter to Kashinath Trevedi, President, Madhya Bharat P.C.C. that he did not want the Chief Justice to be involved in the question which was purely an administrative and political one. The Deputy Prime Minister is also stated to have said that he should have been consulted before the consideration of such resolution.

An emergent meeting of the Provincial Congress Executive will be held on Monday to consider Sardar Patel's letter and to decide whether the original resolution be dropped.

U.P.'s New Social Training Scheme

LUCKNOW, May 28 (UPI).—The Government of Uttar Pradesh has decided to replace the present scheme of training of graduates in social service by a scheme which would aim at integrating training in social service with general course of instruction.

The revised scheme mainly intended for the boys of class XI will be introduced in selected districts and the scope of social training will be restricted to practical labour such as digging, other forms of manual labour and such useful activities as relief work at melas and promotions of literacy.

Withdrawal Of Labour Bill Demanded

LUDHIANA, May 28 (UPI).—A memorandum signed by office bearers of 16 various organisations representing about four thousand labourers has been sent to the Labour Minister, Government of India, demanding immediate withdrawal of the Labour Relations Bill and the Trade Union Bill now before the Union Parliament.

NORMALCY RETURNS TO E. BENGAL

Minorities Moving Quite Freely

MYMENSINGH, May 28 (PTI).—Leaders in Mymensingh, East Pakistan's largest and most populous district, are making all-out efforts to implement the Nehru-Liaquat Pact on minorities, writes PTI special correspondent touring East Bengal.

They have formed a minority board to resettle the returning Hindus, who once formed 20 per cent of the district's 80,00,000 population.

Streets of Mymensingh, which were quiet even during the early days of recent communal clashes, are full of people and normal business is seen in its busy bazaars.

The Hindus in Mymensingh are freely moving about in their distinctive "dhoties", encouraged by official assurances about their safety and liberties. Trains steaming into the district also bring a mixed crowd, many of whom are members of the minority community.

BUSINESS DULL

Business in the district, however, is reported to be "showing signs of lull"—with the exodus of wealthy customers and high assessment of sales tax.

Refugee camps on the outskirts of towns present contrasts. The Assam Muslims have expressed willingness to return to their homes if assured of resettlement, though the West Bengal refugees are assertive about loyalties to the land of their choice. Some refugees are also proving a headache to the authorities, refusing to vacate the Hindu houses they occupied in recent weeks. The return of the Hindus has made the tasks of the officials doubly difficult—but they affirm faith in the Nehru-Liaquat Pact and are active in their eviction measures.

BENGAL PRODUCTION DRIVE

Waste Used As Manure Gives Good Results

CALCUTTA, May 28 (UPI): With a view to encouraging increased production of foodgrains, vegetables and jute, the Government of West Bengal has been distributing sludge for use as manure.

It is obtained by the sedimentation of the city's sewage in two of the biggest plants in the world. This indigenous city waste is actually a rich well-balanced organic manure and increases production by 25 to 30 per cent of normal outturn of paddy and jute.

A large number of careful trial of this manure in cultivator' fields in different districts of this state showed that on an average one ton of manure applied per bigha gave 3 maunds of extra paddy.

Sludge manure is supplied by motor transport to grower' plot on accessible motor routes within a distance of 30 miles from Calcutta.

U.P. REBELS SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT

LUCKNOW, May 28 (UPI).—According to information received at the headquarters of the U.P. Provincial Congress Committee, the Congress candidate in the bye-election to the Utter Pradesh State Legislative Assembly from the Basti Rural Muslim East Constituency, M. Abdul Moiz Khan, has defeated his rival candidate who was being supported by the 'rebel' group in the Provincial Congress by a majority of 2,049 votes.

Mr. Abdul Moiz Khan, the Congress candidate polled 3,680 votes while the rival candidate secured only 1,639 votes.

CARELESS HANDLING OF EXPLOSIVES

49 Die In 1948

NEW DELHI, May 28 (PTI): Forty-nine persons lost their lives and a much larger number sustained injuries in 86 accidents which occurred during the year 1948 through "careless or ignorant handling" of explosives, petroleum and other hazardous substances, according to the annual report just published by the Department of Explosives, Ministry of Works, Mines and Power, for the year 1948-49.

The report points out that cinematograph films were the cause of several accidents. In Delhi and Calcutta, the report says, 13 people were killed and six injured due to films stored in residential rooms catching fire. In Bombay, six persons sleeping in a room were trapped and burnt to death when scrap films stored in a nearby room caught fire.

The Department has enforced certain regulations throughout India for safe storage and transport of this highly inflammable commodity. Efforts are being made, the reports add, to remove all large film storages outside crowded areas of cities. The incidents of damage to property and life resulting from storage of films would be then greatly reduced.

Six persons who received injuries at the hands of the raiders have been admitted into hospital.

15,000 Nairobi African Workers On Strike

SITUATION EXPLOSIVE

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

NAIROBI, May 28.

CONFUSION and chaos reigns supreme in the capital of Kenya following a "general strike" by Nairobi's 15,000 Africans beginning immediately after the arrests of Makhan Singh, Indian General Secretary and Fred Kubai, African President of the East African Trades Union Congress.

The news of the arrests of these two Trade unionists early on May 15 spread like wild fire throughout Nairobi. Some of the adjoining areas, notably the Limuru area where the well-known shoe firm of Bata employs no less than 400 Africans, are also believed to be affected by the strike.

GOVERNMENT ACTION

The Kenya Government has promptly put into operation the Essential Sevices Ordinance, 1950, This law prohibits persons employed on "essential" industries, such as Food, Fuel and Electricity, Water, Railways and Transport, necessary for the maintenance of civilian life in the City from abstaining from work. It also prohibits persons from addressing meetings in connection with any or all of these industries.

Taxi drivers were the first to declare the strike. Other Africans employed in private businesses followed suit. Some of the buses operated by the Nairobi Municipality did not ply and the African residential area buses came to an abrupt stop.

Scavangers of the Nairobi Municipality also abstained from work for fear of being "black-legged" by their own kith and kin. The Government of Kenya under special regulations has ordered all prisoners serving long-term sentences in the Nairobi prisons to do the scavengers' work. The prisoners are compelle to work under armed police escort.

A number of individual members of the East African Trades Union Congress overnight distributed cyclostyled leaflets to all 'African workers" to strike work with a view to obtaining the release of Makhan Singh and Fred Kubai, the granting by employers of a minimum salary of Shs. 100 (Rs. 65) to every African worker and the obtaining of immediate "freedom for East Africa."

The strikers are making it clear that they would only return to work after Makhan Singh and Fred Kubai have been released immediately. Unsuccessful attempts were made by African Legislative Councillors the Hon'ble E. W. Mathu and Hon'ble James Jeremmiaah, to persuade the strikers to return to work, but the meeting failed to produce any significant results. Confusion spread and the meeting ended in utter chaos.

According to sources close to African strikers, the strike is being directed from underground where a number of Africans are leading the strike with success.

POLICE SUMMONED

Police from upcountry stattions have been summoned to Nairobi to deal with any violent outbursts in the city. Steelhelmeted police accompanied by armoured cars and tanks are maintaining a regular patrol of important centres in the City.

A number of African "intimidators", including an Indian, Jarnail Singh, who was alleged to have addressed a meeting of African strikers exhorting the latter to continue until their demands were acceded to by he auhtorities, were arrested and remanded into custody for a fortnight.

In the meanwhile, the Government has framed charges against Makhan Singh and Fred Kubai. The first charge against Makhan Singh is that he is a member of an "unlawful" organisation called the East African Trades Union Congress in that the latter having been refused recognition by the Government as a trade union automatically ceased to have any status in the eyes of the law.

Secondly, he is also charged with making false statements on oath. A charge of perjury.

Thirdly, and the most important, that he is an "undesirable person" in Kenya inasmuch as his speeches and writings tended to incite feelings of disaffection amongst various subjects of His Majesty. In an 8-page affidavit, the Director of Intelligence and Security, Nairobi, has sought from the Supreme Court of Kenya a "restriction order" under the Deportation of Immigrant British Subjects Ordinance, 1949, which, if granted by the court, would restraint Makhan Singh from making any speeches and would also entitle him to be confined at some lonely spot as a detenu of the Government. The maximum period under which any person can be so detained is about 5 years.

Fred Kubai, the African President of the E.A.T.U.C. is also charged with Makhan Singh of being a member of an unlawful organisation called the T.U.C. In addition, he is also charged with the attempted murder of an African Councillor Gikonyo who "on behalf of Africans of Nairobi" made a speech during the visit of Duke of Gloucester on March 30 when he presented a Charter of City to Nairobi. Gikonyo for having addressed the Duke "on behalf of Africans of Nairobi" was unsuccessfully shot at during night by unknown Africans.

Fred Kubai is allegedly linked with the attempted murder of Councillor Gikonyo.

The situation in Nairobi is very explosive although life is not much affected by the strike as the authorities to some extent are doing their utmost in preventing any complete stoppage of work.

Trouble is however feared when the cases of Makhan Singh and Fred Kubai come up for hearing this week and particularly on May 29.

Court rooms are expected to be guarded and all visitors and others entering the Court premises are expected to be searched and other security precautions taken.

PROTECTION OF HOLY PLACES

Israel's New Note To U. N.

LAKE SUCCESS, May 28 (PTI-Reuter).—Israel today proposed a new plan to establish a United Nations authority for Jerusalem.

Intended as a substitute for the internationalisation scheme, opposed by both Israel and Jordan last autumn, the new proposal was made to the United Nations Trusteeship Council in a memorandum.

It was stated to be based on the principles contained in a compromise suggestions presented at the last United Nations General Assembly by Sweden, Holland, Cuba, Bolivia "and a number of Christian leaders."

The new plan proposed that the United Nations authority's main functions would be to protect holy places and it would have the right to negotiate with the Government of Israel and Jordan agreements covering holy places outside Jerusalem.

The Israel memorandum pointed out that "if an international regime is really desired" the Israeli Government would be prepared to co-operate in internationalising the territory in which the holy places were mostly concentrated—an area of one and a half square miles within the walled city and its immediate surroundings.

The proposed demilitarisation of the city, the memorandum added, would strip Jewish Jerusalem of its vital defences and expose it to attack by Arab forces on three sides.

"From having complete control of the new city which they had built and defended the Jewish population would be reduced to the level of having no power or authority whatever in the affairs of Jerusalem," it said.

END THE AGITATION

Punjab Chief Minister's Call To Tenants

SIMLA, May 28 (UPI).—Dr. Gopichand Bhargava, Chief Minister, Punjab, yesterday urged upon all who were concerned, to cry a halt to the tenants' agitation which was still being carried on in three different districts of the State, namely, Hoshiarpur, Ferozepur and Hissar, inspite of the promulgation of the Security of Tenants Ordinance.

He appealed to the tenants to work hard instead of indulging in irresponsible agitations.

"The Government has already tried to give a sense of security to the tenants by increasing their tenure and it is not possible for it to turn the tenants into peasant proprietors. If instead of agitating the tenants started doing work, they would find ample opportunity to improve heir lot", he said.

Continuing Dr Bhargava said, "In the case of both resident and displaced tenants, the attitude of the Socialists and of those who yielded to their exploitation is untenable.

It must be realised that Government is not in a position to allot land to all the inhabitants of the State. If any allottee or land owner does not cultivate his land, the Government can take it over and get it cultivated through the tenant but even in that case a tenant shall remain a tenant, for the Government cannot deprive the landowner of his property.

"It is, therefore, not in the interes of the tenants that they should allow themselves to be exploited by the Socialists and make their own position difficult."

Follow Example Of Red Army

CZECH DEFENCE MINISTER'S CALL

PRAGUE, May 28 (PTI-Reuter): Defence Minister Alexei Cepicka criticised shortcomings in the Czechoslovak army and the "need to root them out with all speed" in a speech to soldier Communists at General Staff Headquarters in Prague.

Dr. Cepicka, who became Minister of Defence a month ago in succession to General Ludviksvoboda, said the basic mistake was failing to follow the example of the Soviet Army.

"Everywhere and in everything we must be guided by the example of the Red Army; and that holds good for the highest commanders and the simple private alike" he said.

At present work was better on the lower levels than at the top.

All officers would henceforth be judged according to their acts and not on expressions of formal loyalty.

BRITISH REPLY TO SCHUMAN OFFER

Differences In Views

PARIS, May 28 (PTI-Reuter): Britain's reply to France's invitation to join negotiations for setting up a European coal and steel pool was received at the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs last night.

Although there had not been time to study the British reply fully, a French Ministry spokesman said that it left the same impression as had Mr. Bevin's earlier offer to M. Schuman and that there still existed a distinct difference between the views of London and Paris.

The spokesman said that the French Government was not in any way asking other Governments to bind themselves in advance to any agreement.

What it was insisting upon was that acceptance to join the negotiations should mean acceptance to negotiate on the basic points put forward by M. Schuman in his original declaration of May 9 and not on some alternative proposals.

FREE TRADE UNIONS' MEETING ENDS

Support To Schuman Plan

BURSSELS, May 28 (PTI-Reuter): A resolution passed by the Executive Boad of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, whose meeting ended here last night, declared that "the free trade unions are vitally interested in a national organisation of the heavy industries of Western Europe."

The resolution insisted on invitation of the free trade unions in any discussion to be held on the national and international level for the purpose of determining the principles and for working out details of the Schuman Plan."

It added that the Executive had desided to appoint a Committee including representatives of the National Trade Union Centre and International Trade Union Secretariats directly interested to study details of the Schuman Plan.

The Executive approved a resolution, passed in Dusseldorf earlier this month uging the Governments of West Germany, Belgium, France, Britain, Luxembourg and Holland to enter into negotiations to create an inter-European authority for the coal and steel industries.

The Executive agreed on final instructions for a delegation to South East Asia and the Far East.

Members will assemble in Brussels and leave within three weeks.

"Put An End To Mutual Accusations"

MEHTAB'S FERVENT APPEAL TO STEP UP PRODUCTION

NEW DELHI, May 28 (PTI).

INDIA'S INDUSTRY AND SUPPLY MINISTER, Mr. Hare Krishna Mahatab, in his first public utterance after assuming office, appealed today for an end to "mutual accusations and recriminations" between Government and industry.

Mr. Mahatab, who was inaugurating the Fifth Annual General Meeting of the Delhi Provincial Board of the All India Manufacturers' Organisation, told the assembled manufacturers: "Remember history will not record the mutual recriminations. If we do not create anything, history will only record that the present generation was incompetent and could not do anything. Let us guard ourselves against that verdict of history".

The Minister said that he was "not fond of speaking" and "hereafter I do not propose to make any speeches". When he assumed office first in 1946 he made a public declaration not to speak or attend public meetings for a year and he attended a public meeting only in 1947.

Mr. Mahatab said he was prepared to meet the industrialists and talk with them about their plans or about Government's efforts, but he would not like to deliver speeches. "This atmosphere of criticism and mutual accusation should cease. I want to create a new atmosphere", he declared.

"UNDUE INTERFERENCE"

Welcoming the Minister, Mr. Gujarmal Modi, President of the Delhi Board, said that the present state of affairs of industry in the country was due to "undue interference on the part of Government and continued application of controls". Mistrust and suspicion between the industrialists and Government must be removed".

Inaugurating the Conference, Mr. Mahatab said that in the criticism made of Government by the President there was nothing "unusual". It had been repeated so often and on so many occasions that it had become "almost hackneyed".

Mr. Mahatab added that when Mr. Bernard Shaw touched Bombay a few years ago on his way to Colombo he told pressmen who asked him about his impressions of India "you Indians can quote Herbert Spencer volume by volume but you cannot do a single bit of work".

"All these have been repeated so often that they have lost their value" the Minister said but if there was a "mutual accusation" going on that Government were not helping the industry and the industry was not helping the Government. It had been going on for several years and the only result of it was "no work and no production".

MUTUAL TASK

Continuing Mr. Mahatab said: Any Government, whether in India or elsewhere, weighs all aspects of events and then comes to conclusions. The task then is to go ahead with those conclusions or in spite of those conclusions.

"This is a mutual task. Government are not the only party. No attempts can be made to compel one party to do a certain thing. If you think Government can be compelled into a certain position it is impossible. Similarly Government also cannot compel any section to do anything.

APPEAL

Appealing to the industrialists of the country to keep national interests above their own, the Minister said: "Labour and capital are not the only interests in society. There is also another interest, namely, the man who is purchasing the things. When we discuss the difficulties of industries we mean the interests of industrialists and labour.

BERHAMPUR, May 28 (PTI).

BIHAR RAIL WORKERS TO GO ON STRIKE

Non-Implementation Of Tribunal Award

PATNA, May 28 (UPI).—The Bihar-Bakhtiarpur Light Railwaymen's Union has served a strike notice on the management of the railway intimating that they would go on strike from midnight of June 4, 1950, for alleged non-implementation by the management of the award of the Central Government's industrial tribunal.

The Union claims that the extra payments to the employees by the Railway had been sanctioned by the Tribunal with retrospective effect from April 1949, whereas the management had decided to sanction the same from April 1950, thus violating the tribunal award.

The victimisation and dismissal of employees, questions of issue of summer and winter uniforms to staff, travelling allowances and discriminations in promotions, etc., are reported to be other grounds for serving the strike notice.

According to the General Secretary of the Union a strike ballot was taken and 285 out of 300 union members voted in favour of the proposed strike.

COMBINED SEA-AIR EXERCISES

Manoeuvres In Indian & Far Eastern Waters

BOMBAY, SUNDAY,

DETAILS of the manoeuvres and exercises which the Indian Navy in conjuction with the Indian Air Force, the Royal Air Force and the Far Eastern Squadron will carry out in its summer cruise in the Indian and Far Eastern waters, were outlined by Vice-Admiral W. E. Parry, Naval C-in-C and Commodore Barnard, commanding the Indian Neval Squadron, at an informal talk to pressmen on board the I.N.S. Delhi this morning.

The exercise will begin on Monday morning when the destroyers 'Rajput', 'Ranjit' and 'Rana' and the frigades 'Jumna', 'Kistna' and 'Tir' with the flagship 'Delhi' will leave port at 8-30 as a convoy. Forty miles out at sea the convoy is expected to espy an enemy reconnoitering plane—a Liberator of the Indian Air Force which will take off from Poona, and wwhich will represent the enemy. No sooner the plane is sighted, the naval squadron will be altered, and, getting into battle formation, will signal to Bombay for the despatch of reinforcements.

During the afternoon the order will be changed when the Air Force planes from Poona—this time representing India, will be shadowing the enemy naval squadron, and getting within range they will straffe the bridges of the ships.

NIGHT OPERATIONS

These exercises will continue for two days, and on the third day the navy will confine itself entirely to night operations in torpedoing, shadowing and other allied manoeuvres.

This is the first time that exercises of this nature in which the Navy will work in co-ordination with the Air Force will take place, the main purpose being the gaining of practical experience under actual fighting conditions.

On reaching Singapore the Naval Squadron will conduct combined exercises with the Far Eastern Squadron for three days, after which they will leave for Penang, where they will engage in manoeuvres with the Royal Air Force. These exercises, as Commodore Barnard said, will be of inestimable value both to the Indian Navy and the Royal Air Force.

Before proceeding to Singapore, the Indian Naval Squadron will steam into Cochin, where Prime Minister Pandit Nehru will board the Flagship 'Delhi' for Indonesia on his first official visit to this new State.

MALACCA, May 28 (PTI).—British War Minister John Strachey and Colonial Secretary James Griffiths yesterday sped through several danger spots in a heavily armed convoy, on their tour of guerilla operational areas in Malaya.

At Negri Sembilan police headquarters at Seremban a 19-year old surfendered terrorist, who claimed he was half English, burst into tears when he saw them.

The Ministers chatted with other former guerillas, but did not speak to the weeping youth, who led a gang before giving himself up.

Their cars sandwiched between two armoured cars and five scout cars manned by guards the Minister today passed through Selangor, Negri Sembilan and Malacca.

Speaking through an interpreter, Mr. Strachey said he would tell the people of Britain that the fact that they were there, with guns provided by the Government, and the fact that they were using them on the side of the Government in the struggle against lawlessness, was proof that the Malay people were "with us in this struggle."

He added: "The British army will help you and support you to any extent necessary."

Culture League Maintain Unbeaten Record

POOR SUPERVISION MARS KEY HARWOOD FOOTBALL ENCOUNTER

BOMBAY, Sunday.

India Culture League—the "giant killers" of the season gained a hard earned victory against G.I.P. Railway, the winners of the Nadkarni Cup by the odd goal in three. Earlier, Burmah Shell triumphed over Bombay Gymkhana by three goals to one. These were two exciting games in the First Division of the Harwood Football League.

It must be mentioned that today's key match between I.C.L. and G.I.P. proved rather a disappointment with regard to the supervision by that senior most and well-known referee Gopalan. He was liable to be impartial towards ICL, and it would have been better if in the interest of the game he had given very impartial decisions. This was what spoilt an otherwise very interesting game.

ICL experimented with a new defence. This evening they dropped right back Mukerjee and Govind played in his place then there was a newcomer most unorthodox left-half Paul, who replaced Govind. He completely upset the defence network and Woodcock had a very hard time, but he did his best.

Quick movements with play transferred minute by minute from end to end aptly describes this key encounter between the star studded India Culture League and GIP Railway, the Nadkarni Cup holders. Both goals had narrow escapes and if ever it was a game watching it was a treat to see the precision like passing of both sides.

GIP Railway played a grand game and were rather unlucky. Shiva and Duncan must be mentioned for very brilliant soccer with cool headedness.

The Railway wasted some good chances in the first twenty minutes of play. Shiva failed to shoot when well placed, then Duncan headed wide and Aziz failed to connect to a very good pass from Bhickoo. The ICL side had chances too and these they did use but they failed to get the better of Sukhlal.

The twenty-fifth minute of play proved exciting. ICL's forwards on whom everything depended in the nature of gaining goals and relieving pressure on the defence made a brilliant move between that happy trio Thomas, Parab and Laloo. Thomas passed the ball to Parab and he in turn passed to Thomas, but it returned in turn to Parab who put in a forward pass which Laloo banged in from the top of the box.

Anxious moments followed in Railway goal and Laloo missed another rather exciting one. Peter shot and Laloo attacked the goalie and just got to the ball, but the ball took its time to travel in and Almeida, got to it in the nick of time to clear. Parab then shot wide to a pass from Peter and again another chance was missed by Laloo when he shot into the goalie's hands.

The Railway earned their reward in the one minute before half time when Shiva contacted the ball well and when ideally placed sent in one that had Bhoja beaten unexpectedly.

The Railway were determined to hold fast to this advantage which brought them on a par and a series of missed chances followed. The Railway's fate appeared sealed when out of the blue Peter raced down the left-flank and after beating two defenders beat a helpless custodian from close into put ICL in the lead again.

The Railway pressed, but were unlucky, Bhickoo failed to push the ball over the head of goalkeeper Bhoja who was being helped by Narayan, the right half as he attempted to push the ball towards the goalkeeper. ICL were lucky winners.

The teams were:—

INDIA CULTURE LEAGUE: Bhoja; Govind, Woodcock, Narayan, Aziz, Pull, Roy, Parab, Laloo, Thomas, Peter.

G.I.P. RAILWAY: Sukhlal; Panna, Almeida, A. Duncan, Gulabsingh, Dalgado; M. D'Souza, Tambe, Aziz, Shiva, Bhickoo.

Bombay Gymkhana put up a good fight against Burmah-Shell but they were up against a far superior side and they lost by the odd goal in four. Gymkhana opened their account in the fifth minute when inside right Truman scored, but Ganesh restored equality in the eighth minute. The teams were on level terms at the interval.

The second session was a triumph for Ganesh, Shell's centre forward who scored twice more to score a hat-trick for his side and his own.

The teams were:—

BURMAH-SHELL: T. Le Febour; St. Anne, Angelo; Santan, Valdya, Pinto, Santiago, Middlecoat, Ganesh, Rego. Maxie.

BOMBAY GYMKHANA: Chiplin; Linford, Till; Deslandes, Williamson, Collins; Eichenberger, Truman, Jones, Bourcier, Mullock.

GLOBE 'A' GAIN NARROW WIN

Indian Football League At Parel

BOMBAY, Sunday.

Globe Sports 'A' must thank their marksman Ishwar Rao for securing a last minute goal which enabled them to gain full points against Little Pioneers 'A' in the Indian Football League First Division, when they won by the odd, goal in three at St. Xavier's Ground Parel.

Little Pioneers must blame themselves for not running out winners. for though they had the upper hand in the initial they failed to drive home the advantage due to a number of wasted chances, but instead they allowed their opponents Globe to score midway through this period when Ishwar Rao scored the outcome of a sporadic raid.

Crossing over with this advantage Globe dominated and did the very same thing their opponents did in the preceeding half. It was a story of wasted chances which, however, almost came to an end when Little Pioneers equalized through Pakrasi just two minutes before the call of time. But Ishwar Rao came to the rescue of Globe and netted the winning goal just before the end.

In the second division game played in the I. F. League earlier in the evening. Asbestos Cement beat Globe Sports 'B' by two goals to one at the same venue. James and Abubaker scored for the winners while Louis scored for the losers.

Three matches were played in the junior division of the Harwood Football League at the Naigaum Police Ground, but the important match was the Fourth Division game in which Block Dynamos beat World United by five goals to two. By virtue of this victory Block Dynamos won Section 'C' of their division.

Braganza and Bunny scored two each for the winners and Timothy completed his sides tally, while Thomas scored both goals for his side.

In the other game in the fourth division Bengal Club 'B' beat Bhoiwada by two goals to one. Dass scored both the winners goals, while Raghunath reduced the margin.

Rainbow Sports 'B' trounced Young Silver Stars to the tune of 8 goals to nil in the Third Division of the Harwood Football League at the Police Ground. Indulkar and Hari scored two each, while Bona scored 3, Mahadeo completed his sides tally.

COUNTY CRICKET CHAMPIONSHIPS

Arrangement Of Fixtures Severely Criticised

LONDON, May 28 (PTI-Reuter).

All counties have now set out on their quest of the county cricket championship. The same could not have been said a week ago even though the championship campaign for 1950 had started on April 29.

This is a strange position and which has led to criticism on the fixtures arrangement which allows one county some intense preparation before commencing their engagements in the championship.

Yorkshire are the county concerned, and in a letter to the newspapers a correspondent suggests that it is unfair to other sides that one county should arrange a programme of what might be termed "preparation matches" before going into the championship. He suggests that this allows such a county to start off in excellent practice.

Yorkshire did, in fact, play the two Universities, West Indies and the M.C.C. before they contested their first county fixture.

Glamorgan on the other hand had a county championship match as their start to the season's cricket and they played four matches before collecting a single point.

While, on the face of it, it may seem an unfair situation, particularly when looking at football which starts off its championship programme with all teams engaged at the same time, cricket provides difficulties. Matches have to be planned with a view to travelling, remembering that they follow one immediately after another generally without a break between unless there happens to be an early finish. If this was not arranged properly a chaotic state of affairs would arise. In any case cricket fixture are arranged at a meeting of the secretaries and it is easy enough at that time to raise any objections to what may be considered unfair arrangements.

Rains Have Been Unkina To League Cricket

MANCHESTER, May 27 (PTI-Reuter):

All the Central Lancashire League cricket matches in which the Indian players—Amarnath (Radcliffe) Vinoo Mankad (Castleton) and Umrigar (Werneth)—were to appear, were rained off today.

Since the season opened only one Saturday has been clear of rain. Many clubs in the League are facing serious financial loss. Gates in some instances have been less than £ 12.

Valentine, the West-Indies, left-hand slow spinner, who proved a menace the English batsmen more than the fast bowlers Johnson or Prior Jones.

A deep-sea diver descending into the depths of the ocean hard fish laughing raucously. He found that the object of their derision was an octopus who had no control of his tentacles. The diver shooed the fish away, unwound the entangled tentacles of the octopus and suggested that he should spend a holiday with his family at Grimsby. The octopus accepted the invitation.

The diver's wife took a great liking to the octopus and appreciated his help in the house. He made short work of the washing-up and was the first to put his tantacles in his pocket when they went to the "local."

One night the wife said that she would like to give him a present to show her appreciation of his help in the house. The diver asked the octopus what he would like, and he promptly replied "Bagpipes."

MEDIATOR'S TASK

If Sir Owen Dixon, UN Mediator in the Kashmir dispute, feels confident of the outcome of his mission, it is largely because he starts with a cleaner slate than the others who functioned in the same sphere, even though matters have been greatly muddled by his predecessors. Sir Owen's task is not to pass judgment on the rights and wrongs of the two attitudes but to attend to the demilitarisation of Kashmir State. The Governments of India and Pakistan were required to prepare and execute within five months (that is, by the end of July, 1950) a programme of demilitarisation. The Mediator's task was to help this preparation and implementation. Hitherto, there have been no discussions in any of the various Indo-Pakistan conferences of the demilitarisation programme. Evidently the whole burden of working it up has been left to Sir Owen Dixon when he begins his work in Kashmir. That will mean a possibility of the two countries being hustled into decisions in view of the brief time at their disposal. Sir Owen is called upon to so arrange the disposion of armed forces on either side as not to constitute restrictions on the free expression of opinion for the purposes of the plebiscite. The Indian case has consistently been that the Pakistan forces in Kashmir being their unlawfully, they should be completely cleared out and the "Azad Kashmir forces" which, it has been repeatedly conceded, are but a subordinate branch of the Pakistan Army, be disbanded forthwith. Without these two necessary measures, it is difficult to see how the plebiscite could be called free in any sense. But the UN authorities have adopted a more lenient attitude towards the marauding forces and their view will be naturally put through by their agent, Sir Owen. It will depend on what is agreed on between Sir Owen and the two Governments which he will soon be consulting. But broadly it seems that the general outlines of the McNaughton proposals will be observed, even though India has objected to some parts of it. It will be in the preliminary stages of the talks with the two Governments that the major decisions will be taken and it is here that the greatest care is necessary. Sir Owen's advantage over the UN Commission lies in the fact that he has an enforcable plan within his reach where, once he succeeds in getting the advance approval or acquiescence of the two Governments, he can push ahead with implementation unobstructed. It is a situation analogous to that in which Lord Mountbatten found himself when the Partition Plan was assented to and replaced the Cabinet Mission scheme. And it is a condition which finds India particularly vulnerable.

As the nation that referred the controversy first to the United Nations, India is in a difficult state. She has to see the UN intervention through as far as possible and even beyond what might be regarded as reasonable. All the concessions made for the maintenance of international law by India are forgotten or at any rate ignored whilst her objections to measures that seem unfair and unjust, are set forth as proof of her weak case. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru correctly observed recently that India had made so many concessions that it was not possible for her to make any more despite her desire for a peaceful settlement. We here cannot forget that at every stage India has kept steadily before her the interests of the Kashmir people to whose succour her armed forces went on the invitation of the established Government of Kash- It was the desire to leave the decision regarding the future of Kashmir to the people of Kashmir which led the Government of India to keep the accession of that State tentative, pending confirmation or reversal by plebiscite. Thus the next few days when the work of Sir Owen will be planned, are crucial, offering as they do the last chance of asserting the fundamental difference between India's position in Kashmir and that of Pakistan.

The UN programme of action in Kashmir appears simple. It aims at reducing the armed forces there, whether Indian or Pakistani, whether Kashmir State forces or "Azad Kashmir" men, to the minimum necessary for preserving law and order and for preventing the compulsion of the people to vote this way or that. Even the McNaughton plan contemplated UN supervision, exercised by military observers deputed by that body, over the territory managed by the Pakistan—"Azad Kashmir" set-up. It is unseatisfactory because the UN has no armed forces at its command to enforce its findings but must work through the local authorities. Sir Owen starts out with a virtual partition of Kashmir which both sides are asked to respect scrupulously. It is not easy to predict where he goes from there. It has been suggested that the two factions in Kashmir will accept any agreement that India and Pakistan might arrive at. It might be possible for Pakistan to act on ths basis, but India for obvious reasons cannot proceed with the consent of Sheikh Abdullah's Government. Considering that it is agreed on all hands that the future of Kashmir should be decided as a whole, the United Nations has a great responsibility and it has intensified it by deciding on a course which initiallly breaks up that State. With other issues before it, it might be tempted to take the easiest path in solving the Kashmir dispute. But the effect of this on the other disputes before it cannot be minimised.

"Cold War"

It is claimed that co-ordinated efforts of West European countries, led by the United States, have stopped the advance of the "Communist menace" in Europe. That may be so, although the "cold war" in Europe persists in such dangerous intensity that M. Trygve Lie has had to rush about on a "pilgrimage of peace" and to warn the world that 1950 was "the year of decision". Europe will remain the powder magazine of the world so long as it remains divided in two camps hostile to each other. Meanwhile, other powder magazines are rapidly coming into being. The "Communist menace" may have been checked in Europe but its challenge has appeared elsewhere too. And it is no less serious and urgent than in Europe, the home of all world devastating conflicts There is the Middle East, always a fertile field of Big Power rivalries and antagonisms because of its strategic position and its oil. Since it holds the initiative of shifting the "menace" from front to front, the Soviet Union is expected to turn its attention to that region now and we should not be surprised if it did. For, the ground is being well and rapidly prepared for the "cold war" in the Middle East. Apart from the proclamation by the Western Big Three of their continued protection of Greece and Turkey; they have announced military and economic benefactions to apply with striking impartiality to all countries of the Middle East. But inside this universality conflicts and bitterness in the Middle East will not only continue but will intensify also. Every Middle East country is bitter over the establishment of Israel, which is the creation predominantly of the United States. As if that was not enough, trouble has arisen between Jordan and other Arab States, for which the Big Powers are responsible in no small measure and which has further increased Arab bitterness against them. The Soviet Union is bound to react against the announcement of Western interest in the Middle East. And it is being assured success by the policies of its antagonists themselves. The next few months may see anxious developments in that critical region of the world.

Then there is, of course, the region of South East Asia, currently the centre of agitated alarums and excursions. The striking thing about anxiety in regard to South East Asia is that while the West talks loudly of the "Communist menace" it does not pay any thing like a proportionate attention to the fundamentals of the problem. The "Communist menace" is a fact and it is almost as serious as the panicky among Westerners describes it. But to South-East Asians the important thing is not so much "the Communist menace" as the "nationhood" that has emerged and is emerging there. An old struggle for freedom is acquiring vindication in the form of free states and nations. But that struggle was and is against the colonialism of the "democratic" west. To the South-East Asian countries the enemy has traditionally been colonialism, and naturally so too. For, it is under colonialism that South-East Asia has suffered economically, politically and spiritually. So long as colonialism exists, whatever the disguise, so long will the peoples of South-East Asia be looking askance at it than at the "Communist menace". Those who would warn South-East Asia against "the Communist menace" must first execute the liquidation, complete and thorough, of colonialism and colonial interests and privileges in South East Asia. This was really the issue that emerged at the recent Commonwealth Conference and this is what is emerging at Baguio, where the keynote was sounded by the Indonesian delegate: Freedom from existing alien dominations must come first Incidentally, the speeches at Baguio show how justified India has been in opposing proposals towards organising South-East Asia into a military bloc.

LAKE SUCCESS, May 26: Israel had indicated her willingness to pay the United Nations 54, 628 dollars as reparations for the assassination of Count Bernadotte, Palestine Mediator, in Jerusalem in September 1948, it was learned here today.

In a letter to Mr. Moshe Sharret, Israel Foreign Minister, Mr. Lie asked that Israel should (1) Apologise to the United Nations; (2) Intensify its efforts to apprehend and bring to justice the perpetrators; (3) Pay the United Nations 54,628 United States dollars "as reparations for the monetary damages borne in connection with Count Bernadotte's death."

Mr. Tulsidas Kilachand, President of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce, urges that the National Planning Commission should concentrate on the problem of coordinating the activities of the Government and of private enterprise and "not waste time on the details of the day-to-day working of industrial units."

But how then will the National Planning Commission be able to coordinate the activities of private enterprise with those of Government?

The Supreme Court has dismissed the "habeas corpus" petition (challenging the three-month externment order served by the Delhi District Magistrate) filed on behalf of Dr. N. B. Khare, President of the All-India Hindu Mahasabha, says a new Delhi report.

Gifted as he is with an acute perception of the fundamentals, Dr. N. B. Khare will, we hope, now proceed to include in the objectives of the Mahasabha the abolition of the Supreme Court.

Speaking at the inauguration in Kandy, Ceylon, of a World Fellowship of Buddhists Dr. B. R. Ambedkar said there were people in India who thought that the time had come when the effort might be made to revive Buddhism.

But won't that also involve the effort to shed completely and unconditionally all hatred, bitterness and vitriolicism?

Dr. Ambedkar urged a declaration on the part of all Buddhist countries that they were determined not merely to have a fellowship but that they would propagate the religion and make sacrifices for it.

Would it be making sacrifices to propagate Buddhism to and among Dr. Ambedkar?

WANTED: A DYNAMIC INDUSTRIAL POLICY

By BHIKHALAL KAPASI

Mr. Hare Krishna Mehtab has assumed the Portfolio of the Industry and the Supply Ministry of the Government of India after a distinguished record of work as the Chief Minister of Orissa. His popularity and quiet efficiency which brought him considerable success in his previous office is likely to prove an asse in his new job. During the last two weeks, he has already endeared himself to various officers of his Ministry by his grasp of the problems.

The problems that confront the Industry Ministry are many and varied. The place of any country in the modern world is measured by her industrial strength and potentiality. It India were to occupy an important and respected place among the comity of nations, she has to develop her industrial strength appreciably. First, Mr. Methab has to develop key industries so that in times of emergency India's defence should not be handicapped for want of any important material. Secondly, he has to enlist the co-operation of industrialists and financial magnates for the starting of or accelerating the pace of new industries. Thirdly, he should make the climate for the investment of foreign capital more favourable.

He should inspire more confidence and enthusiasm on our industrialists to carry on the expansion programme. He should devise ways and means to maximise industrial production even on the basis of existing machinery and plant. He should have an eye on the leading export industries and help them in every way so as to enable them to produce and export more. He should bring about more co-operation between the Industry, Commerce, Finance, and Labour Ministries in order to achieve maximum results.

SLOW PROGRESS

The new Industry Minister must by now have noticed that industrial development has not been very marked during the last three or four years. The money spent either on new industries or expansion of the existing ones has not been impressive. During the first four post-war years (April, 1946 to March, 1950), imports of machinery into India amounted to Rs. 280 crores or about Rs. 70 crores per annum. During the pre-war period, the value of imported machinery stood at Rs. 20 crores per annum. Taking into account the rise in the value of machinery at the present time and also the postponement of the rehabilitation programme during the war years, the progress of machinery imports cannot be considered very impressive. It will be remembered that the USA has now been spending nearly Rs. 7,500 crores per annum and the UK Rs. 2,500 crores per annum on the development of old and new industries. Even the war devastated countries like France and West Germany are able to produce 10 to 12 million tons of steel as against barely one million tons of steel produced by India.

It is against this background that the new Minister should frame his industrial policy. He should note that the industrial expansion had taken place in India from small beginning. While the jute and the tea industries were, until recently entirely owned and controlled by the Britishers, the textile industry was developed with Indian capital on a small scale. Many of the big textile concerns with a capital of Rs. 1 crore or more were started with hardly a few lakhs. The two wars and the large fortunes then made by our industrialists enabled them to stabilise and expand their industries.

A NEW DEVELOPMENT

In other words, Indian industrialists have not been in the habit of investing large sums in any single concern. Further, until now they have been able to secure attractive profits from the investment in consumer industries. Investment in key industries requires large capital. The management is a ticklish job and the waiting period for getting lucrative profits is fairly long. It is therefore not possible for our industrialists to go in for the establishment of large scale industries. Hence it is imperative that the State should itself straightaway undertake the establishment of new industries. The State can also invite big industrial houses to participate in any concern where it can hold a substantial interest. This method of development was very much pronounced in Mysore where the success achieved was considerable. It will also inculcate among Government officers a keen business outlook and quiet efficiency. It is high time that Indians should develop a technique in business management as is noticeable in big American and British houses where the capital invested in a single concern runs into Rs. 200 crores or above.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

Wal-Wal Again!

Mussolini began his invasion of Ethiopia at Wal Wal, a town over the border from Italian Somaliland. Now that present-day Italy has been given a ten-year administration of her former colony, there are signs, says "Worldover Press", that imperialistic elements are trying to bring pressure on the Rome Government for a claim that Wal Wal is not really Ethiopian. Reactionary Italians have their eyes on the oil wells not far from Wal Wal, and about 60 miles inside the frontier, where the U.S. Sinclair Company has been conducting test borings under contract with Haile Selassie. The Italian newspaper "Il Tempo" has run articles purporting to show that the oil wells are inside Somaliland. The "Gazetta del Mezzogiorno", of Bari, printed a map showing boundaries of French and British Somaliland, but leaving as still undecided the frontier between Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland. "Governo", of Rome, openly argues that the boundary needs rectification, backing the claims put forward for a time by the Fascist regime, but which were later withdrawn even by Mussolini as untenable. There is evidence that the de Gasperi Government is determined to do a civilized and unrepressive job of its administration, and is having some success. Yet in the first steps of its programme, it had to recall General Guglielmo Nasi, slated to be top administrator, when it was proved that his record in the Ethiopian War had been one of cruelty. The papers quoted are extreme rightist in tendency, and are probably not representative of majority opinion. "Il Tempo", however,, usually backs the Government and is one of the solidest publications of post-war Italy. Though Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Minister, undoubtedly wants an enlightened colonial administration, the situation will bear watching.

Small Nations And Big

Whilst there is a great deal in Marshal Tito's appeal to the Big Powers to leave the small nations unmolested, it cannot accomplish much because the Big Powers are concerned with small nations only indirectly. Mostly the involvement of small countries in war has been due to the fact that they lay in the path of attack of one Big Power against another. The Yalta arrangements, conceding as they did, the principle of regional spheres of influence, and the structure of the United Nations, based on the bigness of the Big Powers, are all sacrifices of the small nations to the Big Powers. Appeals to the Big Powers will yield little result. What is wanted is for the small nations to get together in the United Nations and offer a solid united front against the wrangling Big Powers. Mr. Evatt tried to form an intermediate class of middle powers but failed to create the extra heirarchy; General Romulo of the Philippines has been consistently exerting himself to rally the small nations but his difficulty has been the tendency of small nations to attach themselves to one or the other of the Big Powers. At one stage it was hoped that India's declaration of freedom from both blocs without implying indifference to the issues of international politics would set a precedent that the others would be glad to follow. But the Big Power pressure has also intensified on both extremes. Marshal Tito is striking a remarkable blow for national freedom but it is obvious that he too can at best hope to play off one against the other bloc.

Fantastic

The U.P. Government's plan for the "re-education" of its administrative officials seems obviously inspired by a desire to appear revolutionary. But we would like to see how it works out in practice. The official is to be forced to make a "thorough study of the teachings of Mahatma Gandhi". If this is done in the training schools, as it is proposed that it should be, the official will be soon a better Gandhian than the Ministers of the Congress Party and we can look forward to lengthy arguments in secretariats over every proposal, and the Ministers will always get the better of it. Another item mentioned in the list is "character-building". It is completely mystifying to us how this can be a subject for teaching. But the U.P. Government, no doubt, is possessed of greater ingenuity. If the Congressmen in office were candid in expressing their views, they would be the first to say that Gandhian principles cannot be applied by Governments. Only a part of this feeling would be the result of disillusionment the bulk springing from an initial lack of interest in Gandhiji's teachings. All this manoeuvring can only bring about an increased amount of hypocrisy.

Deck Passengers

The inquiry that is going on into the conditions of deck passengers, does not seem likely to bring any revolutionary decision But anyone who has gone into the question, will see that it is a much bigger issue than just providing amenities to a neglected section of travellers. There is no other community which has this method of transport for its members, and deck travelling is to a large extent responsible for the low opinion of Indians that other peoples have. The objection to its complete abolition is that the means of travelling and seeking opportunities abroad will then be denied to large sections of the Indian people. It is not possible to say, as one might be tempted to do, that it is better for these people to stay in their own country rather than have them herded like cattle and bundled off. The honest solution is to have the companies provide all the facilities of decent travel, if necessary obtaining subsidies from the State to cover any loss that it might entail. This would in turn entail that mass migrations can only be with the approval and under the auspices of the Government. In practice, this is already largely true. But it is not true so far as the advantages of state management of transport conditions are concerned. Why not complete the picture? The inquiry ought to enter more vigorously at a later stage on the means by which deck travelling can be ended once and for alll.

Extension Of Delhi Pact

The arrangement to exchange some 5,000 persons on both sides between India and Pakistan is an extension of the Nehru-Liaquat Agreement to West Pakistan which will be widely welcomed. Hindus who had left Sindh after February 1, 1950 are to be resettled in Sindh; whilst Muslims who had gone from Uttar Pradesh after the same date, are to be brought back to that State. The move, it has been announced, is an experimental one which will be extended further if it proves successful. Every care is to be taken to ensure that the repatriates are bonafide post-February 1 migrants and to see that they can be spread over without difficulty in different districts. When the terms of the Delhi Agreement were first made known, there was a feeling that it should have been broad enough to cover those displaced persons who had changed over from States and Provinces outside the two Bengals. Since with all persons it holds true that the best arrangement is that which affords them every opportunity of growth and development in the land where they were born, this new step is a particularly happy one and it offers chances of solving the minority problem in both countries. Much will depend on the speed with which it is given effect to. We hope that it will soon be possible to widen the basis of exchange even further in the near future.

OUR READERS' VIEWS

Library Legislation

The promotion of library service and the maintenance of a public library grid have now become an essential function of the governments in developed countries. But there is still an apathy in India for recognising library service as a function of the Government. Our present position is similar to the one in which Great Britain was about a century ago. Great Britain is celebrating the Centenary of her first Library Act this year and America the 150th year of the Library of Congress. And thus, 1950 becomes a memorable year in the history of library progress, and would become an eventful year for India if she launched her library programme now setting about the task in the right spirit. And to achieve the object in view, the Union Government should have on its statute book a Union Library Act which will provide for the establishment and maintenance of a National Central Library and the promotion and coordination of a comprehensive library service for the country. There is even a greater urgency for enacting Library Legislation in the constituent States in the event of any delay in taking up this step on the part of the Union Government. The Government of Madras is the first and foremost State in putting up the Library Act on its staute book. It is, therefore quite natural that other States should ensure at the earliest the enactment of the measure, as a draft Library Bill has already been submitted to the various States by the Indian Library Association on the basis of the Resolution passed at the Nagpur Session of the All-India Library Conference (1949) requesitng the governments of the Union and the constituent States to pass the Library Bill as early as possible. The Indian Library Association has stressed the need to approach the Government authorities and the members of the Legislative Assemblies in this connection with a view to furnishing any other details if necessary regarding the draft Library Bill submitted.

Considering that the Centenary celebration of the Library Legislation are being held in United Kingdom this year, it is now high time that the citizens of the Indian Republic should enjoy free library service under the compulsory library laws in the statute books of their respective governments; and the Indian Library Association makes a sincere appeal to the Union and the State governments in giving immediate effect to the Library Legislation enacting through their legislature which will offer a variety of activities with a range of quality as high as any in the country to suit the tastes of all types and all ages. This will ultimately provide to every serious reader any book of the world in the country through the National Central Library in Delhi. Jai-Hind.

Poona-Bombay Season Tickets

The decision of the G.I.P. administration to revise and introduce the new fares for season tickets between V. T. and Lonavla and Poona, will be appreciated by all those who are required to travel between Poona and Bombay practically daily. When in 1948 the fares were raised from Rs. 31 to Rs. 75 for a season ticket between Bombay and Poona, a large number of middle class families were forced ot face a very ackward situation. It is desirable that the Railway administration should try to ascertain the views of season ticket holders who pay such a large amount to the railway daily. A representative of season ticket holders should have a voice in the matters affecting the interests of these season ticket holders. Will the G.I.P. administration take into consideration the following two points when they introduce a new Janata Express? The Janata Express should reach V.T. at 10 a.m. and leave V.T. at 6 p.m. It should stop at Thana and Talegaon. The authorities should note that Lonavla is the Matheran of middle class families and Poona is the Suburb of Bombay.

Requisition Act

Requisitioning premises for the general public has ceased following a verdict by the High Court of Judicature at Bombay. Those in need of the premises are, under the reason stated, have to undergo innumerable difficulties to get a premise. The Government of Bombay should take into consideration the grievances of the people regarding housing an amend the Act in question whereby people can get premise in turn.

It should so be amended that the informant of the vacant premise may get the place. This will allure the needy persons to come forward with the numbers of vacant premises.

Cruelty To Animals

Mrs. J. F. Khambatta's letter sounds very nice and I must say I know nothing about treatment given to animals by the S.P.C.A. What I do know, however, is that twice in the past I have rung up the S.P.C.A. and told them I have miserable cur with broken legs—a dog half dead with mange that ought to be destroyed and I was todd that they can do nothing, although I offered to bring the animal myself. They mentioned Parel but that was too far for me to go. In the circumstances, I have been taking animals to vets, who charge Rs. 5/- to Rs. 10/- for each animal. Could not the S.P.C.A. do something about the animals that ought to be destroyed?

Refugee Lottery

The severe strain on the State Treasury will be greatly reduced if the Government start a State lottery to help the refugees. Not only the rich and the middle class people will come forward to help but also the poor to buy tickets. There is nothing immoral in starting a lottery for such a worthy cause. And the people, who will not otherwise give a pie, will give in rupees.

—R. T. GOVERNOR.

Why Not A State Lottery?

One is surprised at the scruples of the Bombay Home Minister, who wants to abolish all gambling. Money is good when it is used for a good cause and it is no use asking from where it came. The Government does not hesitate to take money from profiteers and black marketeers. It does not say that it is tainted. Then why not profit from the gambling instinct of man? From times immemorial man has always wanted some thing for nothing. Ingenious devices have been invented to tempt fortune and chance. Many States take this into account and by systematic control have directed gambling into charity. The best example which can be cited is Eire. The Irish Sweepstake is known all over the world. And many hospitals have benefited by it by millions of pounds. Why can not the Government of India follow the example in earnest? It will be in a better position to control and manage than a private agency. As it is millions of rupees are going in the pockets of private individuals who run the socalled cross-word puzzles, which are erroneously called a game of skill. After all the Bombay Government does allot houses by drawing lots and the Central Government does not hesitate to take money by way of taxes from black marketeers. Even some profiteers gave their tainted money to the Gandhi Memorial Fund. Then why not organise lotteries to aid hospitals, refugees, education and even big projects, which have been suspended for lack of funds?

Railway Rats

I received a mango parcel at Jamnagar Station, which was booked from Bombay and found to my great surprise a piece of plank mischievously broken and removed to play havoc with the contents. Apparently railway rats were responsible.

The Railway Receipt gave its weight as 24 seers whereas the actual contents found out were 25 mangoes. It is high time that the Railway administration should round up such deplorable culprits by putting vigilant cats.

Could I also suggest that in cases like this the Government should promulgate necessary laws and regulations to authorise the respective Station Masters or competent Railway officials to inspect the case and settle the claim of the party and save him the botheration of resorting to the obsolete and protracted course of writing to the Claims Superintendent, whose sterotyped reply "your claim is receiving attention" is of very little avail and poor consolation.

The Railways may take shelter under such cases by saying that parcels are booked under Risk Note B. I submit in modern times like this such arbitrary rules are out of place. If they take money for transporting it is then their moral, legal responsibility to deliver the goods, in tact.

Jamnagar.

Drug Traffickers Trick Control Officers

LAKE SUCCESS, May 28 (PTI-Reuter): Drug traffickers the world over are till trying to find ingenous ways of evading United Nations Drug Control Officers.

A recent report by the Narcotics Department of the United Nations discloses some of the quaint methods which smugglers use to transport opium, heroin or morphine.

The amateurs strap phials to their legs or wrap them around their bodies in belts. In Egypt, the most common hiding-place is in the water-skins which are seen everywhere.

Merchant seamen—an important link in the drug traffic—have been known to hide drugs inside capstans, glue them to the under side of tarpaulins, or slip them into hallow masts.

Mechanical-minded smugglers think up a host of "false-bottoms" for suitcases, oil tins, trunks, jewel boxes and even fruit crates.

On the agricultural front, heroin has a habit of turning up inside oranges. Opium is discovered inside the skin of bananas. One enterprising Chinese smuggler used the inside of a couple of dead ducks.

Nothing, however, has yet been discovered to beat the ingenuity of Egyptian smugglers who used to conceal drugs in water-skins.

BISWAS AND MALIK MEET D. P.s IN DACCA

Significance Of Delhi Pact Explained

DACCA, May 28 (PTI-Reuter): MR. C. C. BISWAS and Dr. A. M. Malik, the two Minority Ministers for India and Pakistan, went round three refugee camps in and around Dacca on a "confidence creating visit" today. They were accompanied by Mr. Mafizuddin, the Provincial Relief Minister. The three camps housed in all nearly 9,000 Muslims from West Bengal.

In each of these camps, the Indian and Pakistan Ministers talked to the refugees who narrated their experiences and the circumstances in which they had to leave their homes. Both Ministers explained to the refugees the implications of the Nehru-Liaquat Agreement and impressed on them that both Governments were determined to maintain normal, peaceful conditions and to ensure the safety and security of minorities in either country.

Mr. Biswas emphasised that in order to achieve that it was essential to have the fullest co-operation of the people, especially the hinorities. He told the refugees that they should go back to their homes, not merely because he or any one else asked them to do so but after satisfying themselves that was the proper course of action to be taken. They had no doubt undergone much sufferings and sorrows but he wanted them to think of the future and to minimise their present hardships.

FORGET PAST

Similarly, Mr. Biswas continued, many people had left their ancestral homes in East Bengal because they too had similar exxperiences and were lacking in confidence to come back to their homes. It was, therefore, necessary after turning over the past to make the necessary adjustments in the relationships between the minorities and the majorities so that they could continue to live in peace and amity once again. Many bad things did happen in the past and it was strange that men should descend to levels lower than that of the beasts. But again when sanity came back they were bound to realise their mistakes and repent it.

He said that the Delhi Pact could not be omplemented without the help and co-operation of the refugees themselves. So far as Government was concerned, it would not spare any efforts to ensure that conditions of safety, security and honour were made for returning refugees.

Dr. Malik explained the provisions of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement. He said it was now necessary after taking stock of the situation to plan for the future.

RETURN HOME

Dr. Malik recalled the conditions preceeding the signing of the Nehru-Liaquat Agreement and said that the Agreement embodied long-range measures for ensuring safety and security for the minorities in both the countries. They must think for themselves and after satisfying themselves that it would be in their best interests, they should return to their original homes.

As an indication of how earnestly the Government of India felt about it Dr. Malik recalled the visits to Calcutta of Pandit Nehru after the disturbances and the subsequent visit to Delhi of Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan. If necessary, he said arrangements would be made for the Muslim minorities "to live in compact areas so that they might not feel a sense of insecurity". Tre Commissions set up under the agreement also indicated Governments earnest desire to help the minorities out of present difficulties. These Commissions were manned by the most responsible men who would do their duties without fear and favour. If however, any among them, despite everything felt that he could not go back he would not be forced to do so.

INDIA IS NOW UNITED

Morarji Calls For New Approach

AHMEDABAD, May 28. (PTI): Mr. Morarji Desai, Bombay's Home Minister, said here yesterday that India had become one united whole as she never was before in history, and "we should be all true Indians".

Inaugurating the fourth annual session of the Kshatriya Sabha of Gujarat, Saurashtra and Cutch, the Home Minister appealed for eschewing all communal organisations "unless they are inspired with the spirit of social service".

"The ancient social structure," he declared, "was based on four divisions not of birth but of work. It became atrophied when birth predominated work or worth. With the establishment of democracy based on adult franchise, elections should be run on considerations of principles and not communities. Then only will our democracy be healthy or virile".

"The Congress will come to power if it secures votes, but it will not give up its ideal of service of the people if it does not come to power", Mr. Morarji Desai added.

MENTAL MAKE-UP OF CHILDREN

By T.S. Srinivasan

By nature, the chidd has the urge for self-expression and creation, which unless encouraged, may manifest themselves in the shape of destructiveness, contrariness, perverseness etc. in adolescence. The correct way to deal with these impediments is to discover the real reason for the malady of the child and set matters right.

Punishment or restraint only exaggerates the trouble. The young child's need for affection is the most fundamental and important of his psychological needs. The satisfaction of that craving is the keynote of satisfactory emotional development. Frustration of that craving means unhappiness, delinquency and neurosis. Segregation of delinquents goes against certain basic principles governing the upbringing of a child, namely the security and affection from the parents. Grilling and striking fear damages the child irretrievably. The child needs a stable and settled environment and parents and superiors on whom he can rely for comfort, reassurance, encouragement and above all affection.

DEFIANT ATTITUDE

The common difficulty with a child in early years is naughtiness and defiance. It is the expression of his emotional growing-pain. Inquiry will reveal that it had its root in unstable emotional relationships at home. Very often this tragic home background converts naughtiness into delinquency which occurs between the ages of 9 and 14. If on the top of this, the child is mischievous of high-spirited, he becomes a serious "behaviour problem". The following are the optimum conditions under which delinquency flourishes luxuriantly:

(1) When the child has insufficient outlet for instinctive drives and energy;

(2) When he is materially deprived;

(3) When he is emotoinally deprived, having insufficient affection (stealing is then symbolic of stealing love);

(4) When his home offers poor ethical standards.

(5) When he feels inferior in some way (for delinquency is an attempt to regain self-respect);

(6) When he is intellectually inferior, impulsive and readily suggestible.

HELP TO ADJUST

The child needs help in personality adjustment. His latent feelings of inadequacy, deprivation and inferiority need ventilation. He needs assistance in recognising his limitations and realising his potentialities. He needs rehabilitation. Sympathy and understanding are the only remedies for mental aberrations. Punishment has no permanent effect and is only a temporary deterrent. It keeps in leash for the time being the reprehensible animal instinct which plays riot in unguarded moments. It is true that to understand a child's mind is not an easy job, because the scope of its outward manifestation is much more circumscribed than that of the adult. The mind of the child is a mine and store-house of hidden energy and power, which if properly harnessed will immensely benefit society.

An instance of a boy in the Dadar School for Blind seminary is given below to support the argument that parental affection and not mere segregation will help delinquents. They boy, when admitted, was above discipline and control and was "psychological problem". His life was a tissue of lies; he would not hesitate to break open locks of cupboards and boxes; he would attempt to assault the staff. But the miracle is that the boy is now as docile as any other in the school. In the course of research it was discovered that his life has been one of unremitting torture and repression. The fear complex which has fettered the tenderness of his heart was removed through the administration of love and affection. The experiment succeeded, though it was not a perfect for a time; until it was revealed that there was in the child another side left untouched till then. Drumming had a special appeal for him. A reputed 'tabla' player was engaged: the boy has turned out to be one of the best players in India for his age, he being only 13. Self-expression and sense of importance, lying dormant in his mind, woke up overnight.

LATENT ENERGY

In this case the discovery was more by chance and luck. Not in all cases is it possible to discover the dormant treasure. Parental care and affection, extreme vigilance,—a glimpse at the child in his unguarded moments, a suggestion at an impressive moment, enquiry into an extraordinary conduct, may lead to the discovery of the unknown. Inside the insignificant spark lies concealed the nuclear energy. Wish is the father of thought. We have to get at this "Bhavna" or wish; this latent energy is to be tapped. We are the guardians, the friends and even the ideals of the children. We ourselves must be sincere in our work. Mere segregation or grilling fear and striking terror into the child will not do; it is better to rule by love than fear, if society is to be saved of the transgressions of a child caused by environments.

ENVIRONMENT

Society is the chief cause of crime. Man is responsible because he has free-will, but he is certainly influenced by his environment. If each of his transgressions were investigated, it would be found that in nine out of ten cases, he was the one sinned against rather than the sinner. Confucious said "Am I to punish for a beach of filial piety one who has never been taught filially minded?" Is not he who neglects to teach his son his duties equally guilty with the son who fails in them? Crime is not inherent in the human nature, and therefore the father in the family and the Government in the state, are responsible for the crimes committed against filial piety and the public.

Gandhiji said: The question arises as to what the individual should do in a society where revenge is the rule. The answer lies not in precept but in example. And these alone can set the example who have been wronged. And in Gandhiji's teachings lies the solution of the problem of delinquent children and not in segregation and drying up all that is golden in the child.

U.K. SWITCH TO A POLICY OF DECONTROL

Sequel To Labour Party 'Hush Hush' Meeting

LONDON, May 28 (PTI-Reuter).

THE British Labour Government have suddenly switched to policy of decontrols and economic liberalisation since the "hush hush" meeting of the Party chiefs at a country mansion at Surrey, last week-end.

In one short week, the Government have derationed nearly all steel, agreed on more convertibility of sterling in Britain's proposals for the European Payments Union, relieved the burden of double taxation on incomes from many overseas countries, given the housewife the right to buy milk from the retailer of her own choice, increased London taxi fares by a third to an economic level and given the motorist all the petrol he wants by reaching agreement with two American oil companies for increased supplies to be paid for in sterling.

Biggest effect of this new "freedom" has been felt so far by motorists and the London Stock Exchange.

BULL MARKET

On Friday evening just before it closed for the Whitsun holiday, the stock exchange, elated by the derationing of petrol, gave the technical signal for a new bull market.

The index of British industrial shares edged up to 110 point 4 just beating the peak of 110 points 3 during the devaluation boomlet last September. Stock Exchange observers this weekend fancied the chance of a real boom after the holiday.

Anglo-American economic relations have already benefited strikingly.

EUROPEAN PAYMENTS UNION

Britain's proposals of the European Payments Union, and her agreements on oil, are the biggest steps yet taken towards convertibility of sterling.

British officials here were saying today that some American officials on the continent have in the last few days been stoutly defending Britain's new monetary policy against continental criticisms.

These criticisms were that a European Payments Union on the lines proposed by Britain would involve Belgium, Italy and France in some retreat from convertibility.

In fact under the British proposal, Britain's bilateral agreements with the continental countries would wither away, except or the old sterling balances. All sterling currently earned by the continental Marshall aid countries would have as much convertibility as the Union's own clearing units—because otherwise no country would exercise the option to hold sterling instead of the units.

This means some real convertibility as well as full freedom to transfer within Europe any currently earned sterling and other currencies. The only real outsanding question for the European Payments Union is how much convertibility. Britain and Scandinavia want little of it, while Belgium, Italy and France want a great deal.

MONETARY POLICY

Britain's new monetary policy, in short, is to strengthen sterling by making people want to hold it instead of forcing them to hold it.

It is only superficially that extra petrol for Britain from American sources will be bought wholly in convertible sterling. In at least three ways it would involve some convertibility into dollars—though not more than Britain can afford and probably less than she will indirectly recoup.

On Petrol Britain has gone some way to meet the American case. The mounting supplies should be used to enlarge consumption in the sterling area and not merely to out dollar goods to enlarge the currency discriminations against American exporters. This removal of Anglo-American friction may be the biggest result of the derationing.

Red Flags Greet Strachey!

KUALA LUMPUR, May 28. (PTI-Reuter): Communist flags were posted in Kuala Lumpur today, apparently as a defiant gesture to Britain's War Minister Mr. John Strachy and the Colonial Minister M. James Griffiths, who are visiting the capital.

Santhanam, Minister of State for Railways and Transport, Government of India, who arrived here yesterday in a press interview said that some tentative plans had been drawn up in regard to the rtgrouping of railways and these would be published next month, the views of Chambers of Commerce, the press and the public would be invited thereon, he added.

The plans, he said, would be finalised after the receipt of the views and placed before the Central Railway Advisory Committee before approval by the Government.

Asked about the precautions Government intended taking to avoid railway accidents, the Minister said that it was not uossible to have perfect safety. The Government were trying to make travel a little safer than it was at present.

The Minister said that devices were being evolved to see that nuts and bolts of railway lines could not be easily removed by saboteurs. A system of patrolling railway lines was also to be introduced, he stated.

Mr. Canthanam will be leaving for Mayavaram on Monday night.

A BLUE-PRINT FOR COLOUR BAR

South African Committee's Report On "Asiatics"

TWO joint committees appointed to investigate South Africa's "Asiatic" problem declared in a joint report published here that there was "no doubt the best solution would be repatriation".

CAPETOWN, May 28 (PTI-Reuter)

The Committees—appointed from the Transvaal and Natal, by Minister of the Interior, Dr. T. E. Donges, to make recommendations for amendments to the Union's Asiatic Land Tenure laws—added that "failing or pending repatriation of Asiatics", the present situation had to be dealt with incisively if civil commotions arising from racial tension and strife were to be avoided.

"We can see no way of attaining this end except to legislate for total segregation of the different racial groups, so that in the course of time homogeneous racial group areas are brought about", they said.

The joint report was submitted to Parliament some weeks ago, but has been made public only now.

Nearly all its recommendations have been used to form the basis of the Government's Group Area Bill, introduced by Dr. Donges five weeks ago and now before the House.

In proposing segregation, the Committees said: "These recommendations will, on the hand, not unduly endanger the possibility of repatriation, and on the other hand will not fall for short of what we regard as necessary to deal with the present situation".

But whereas the Committees recommend the compulsory segregation of four main racial groups—"White, Native, Coloured and Indian"—the drafters of the bill have provided for only three—"White, Native and Coloured".

Indians are provided for in a sub-group under "Coloured".

Similarly, the bill provides sub-groups under 'native' "so as to separate tribes where necessary in the interests of peace, as some African tribes refuse to mix socially with others, and often resort to faction fighting if brought together."

The joint report recommended that for each group there should be established areas in which its members would be exclusively qualified to occupy and own immovable property.

THE BASIS

This proposal has been used as the basis of the bill.

Other recommendations of the Committees which have been embodied in the bill outline the methods in which, over a period of years, racially homogeneous communities will arise in the group areas. For instance, the bill suggests a time limit of ten years for people living in an area proclaimed for a group to which they do not belong to terminate occupation of land.

Recommending repatriation of Asiatics in their joint report, the Committees said "the general tenor of evidence submitted was overwhelmingly in favour of the steps recommended. We feel there is no justification for not accepting this evidence.

"One Government after another failed to accept the views of the public and to legislate on the lines desired, until things developed into such a critical state that desperate interim legislation had to be resorted in 1939 and 1943.

ASTONISHING FACT

"This is perhaps the most astonishing fact in the history of the Asiatic problem in South Africa".

The report added that it would be difficult to point to any other vital problem in the history of the country in which the two sections of the white population had held such identical views and co-operated so well as on the Asiatic question.

The group areas bill will empower the Government to declare that any one area of the Union should be set aside for residence and land ownership of one racial group.

WANTED: A DYNAMIC INDUSTRIAL POLICY

Massacre" of August 16, 1946, the share markets have been practically prostrate. Any amount of blood transfusion by Government since then has failed to revive them. As a result, even reputed concerns are not able to raise capital for the establishment of new industries. This state of affairs should not be prolonged lest it should sap the vital energy of the nation. Hence Government must have to come in boldly with the establishment of new industries.

During the last two or three years, there has already been a spate of plans. What is now needed is action. The establishment of the machine tool industry with Swiss help is a step in the right direction. This industry should be speeded up and the new Minister should see that in the course of next few years, India is in a position to undertake the manufacture of capital goods. For instance, even when she wants to develop her iron and steel industry or other industries, she should be able to supply at least an appreciable portion of machinery internally. It is unwise to depend on the USA or any other country where the standard of wages is exorbitantly high. Such dependence will result in the over-capitalization of Indian industries and reduce her competitive power appreciably. Since India has a big hydro-electric development programme, high est priority should be given to the establishment of Electric Plant industry.

NEW INDUSTRIES

In the establishment of new industries, the new Minister should examine the question from the point of view of quick results. For instance, instead of immediately going in for the setting of two iron and steel concerns in Madhya Pradesh and Orissa, Government can advance money to the Tatas and SCOB in such a way as to enable them to produce one million tons more per annum within the next five years. This step will not only prove to be economical but also give us quick results. New steel concerns can be taken up after one or two years when the economic conditions will be more favourable.

The new Industry Minister must make himself clear regarding the future industrial policy of Government. He should expel from the minds of our industrialists that nationalisation of industries will not be a practical proposition for a number of years to come and that they should go on with their schemes of expansion and development in their own way, subject to certain principles. He should persuade them to be more energetic and hopeful about the country's future. In the present world set-up he should not unduly depend on foreign capital for industry's development.

If foreign capital comes, it should receive a fair and just treatment; but it is a folly if India depends on foreign capital on a large scale. Countries like Soviet Russia were able to develop their economy within a short time by adopting a policy of tightening up the belt.

If it becomes necessary for India to do so, she should not hesitate from doing it. If, in spite of all assurances even Indian capital is reluctant to undertake risky enterprises, the Minister should not sit tight, but proceed with developments ahead.

THE GREATEST CURSE

The greatest curse of India today is not even poverty but idleness. If Government takes steps to remove idleness, poverty will in turn be banished. The new Minister has come from Orissa—a backward State—and it is expected that he will take interest in the development of village industries which should be linked with bigger concerns. A few Japanese technicians have already been imparting training to Indians in the development of small scale industries. Although this training is being imparted to refugees, there should be perfect co-ordination between the Rehabilitation and the Industry Ministries in this sphere. Today, in Japan there are 572 factories (1949) employing a total of 34,169 workers in the manufacture of various cycle components. Many of them are located in villages and linked to some concerns in the city. As a result of this, Japan has been able to manufacture 2,258,000 cycles in 1949 (Indian production barely 70,000) at a cheap rate. The export price of a 28" complete bicycle is 19 dollars (Rs. 90) and that of 26" 16 dollars. In India, we are not able to obtain bicycles even at double the price.

Besides, there are a number of administrative problems. Firstly, the Industry and the Supply Ministry which was a war baby—there was not a separate Ministry in the pre-war period—has grown up enormously during the war time. Even today, it is a big organisation employing thousands of people. The Minister should exercise a vigorous watch over the whole working of the Ministry and see to it that the atmost economy is effected. It is now five years since the war was over and yet the Disposal Directorate has been going on merrily.

This in short is the work that awaits Mr. Mehtab. It is to be hoped that he will rise to the occasion and establish a name for efficiency and speedy development of industries.

DISTRIBUTION OF NEWSPRINT

Government Interference Condemned

MONTEVIDEO, May 27. (PTI-Reuter): The United Nations Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and the Press, meeting here yesterday condemned Governmental intervention in the sale and purchase of newsprint.

The resolution, proposed by Alfredo Silva Carvallo of Chile, was carried by ten votes to nil, only Yugoslavia abstaining.

The resolution said that certain Governments, for economic reasons, had restricted foreign currency quotas for buying newsprint, had rationed it to the press, or had confiscated it.

Such "governmental interference", which might lead to "arbitrary or discriminatory action" was undesirable. The resolution recommended ending such practices "in so far as that is compatible with the economic situation".

REVOLT OF YOUTH

SPRING-TIDE OF LIFE SWEEPS OLD CONVENTIONS

LET youth speak for itself. Everyone has talked so much about it, but seldom has it raised its voice in its own defence. Poor, misunderstood Youth, reprimanded, coddled, threatened! Standing with sullen face and downcast eyes before judges of juvenille courts, torn to shreds by its elders, frowned upon by puritans, tongue-lashed by pedagogues, roared at by parents, and despised by neighbours. But still intoxicated with its enthusiasm for the Great Quest. writes Vera Makepeace in Psychology".

"There is neither East nor West when two strong men stand face to face, though thew come from the ends of the earth." Likewise Youth knows no boundaries. Seventeen is seventeen whether in London, Paris or New York. Lusty Youth, full of force, grace, fascination, is the same all over the world if we could peep under the shruds of restriction and conventionality that smoother it, and spy its beating heart. It is an unfathomable dynamic energy held in check by a hair trigger, ready at the slightest suggestion to surge this way or that like a spaniel after a stick. It is quick in reaction and responds to every stimulus. Although indifferent and sullen toward non-essentials, it clings to anything vital as if magnetised. Youth, eager for truth, draws it in as a desert lily the moisture of a sudden shower; but so stuffed is Youth with shams and antiquated conclusions, that it turns away in disgust and thinks, Oh, what's the use of it all, anyway!"

The mind of Youth is essentially primitive. It has not become apathetic from the trappings of civilisation. It is stirred by those vague ancestral memories of freedom in the open and by that law whereby the blossom blows and all the world is warmed.

No better specimens of that affliction, Modern Youths. can be found than among those young vandals that turn the corridors of large high-schools into pandemonium. Humanity is there in the bud, and in every kind of bud. Poisonous weeds, gaudy but kindly sunflowers, lilies of rare fragrance, shy-eyed pansies, bold and slender irises, sturdy hollyhocks, and blue flowers of genius. Some frlame up gorgeously; many are little choked plants, pale from a lack of sunlight and nourishment. At one extreme is the rotter who hangs around with doubtful companions until he sinks into vice; at the other, that splendid, clear-eyed youth who astounds his listeners with his leadership and vision.

Call To Youth

I was successful in bagging Youth's opinion of itself by stealing upon it unawares. One day a class was suddenly aroused from its chronic lethargy by a theme entitled, "The Youth of Today". All began to expostulate and before I knew it the class was in the throes of controversy. They had dozed through Bunyan, the unobtrusive Cowper, the divine Milton, and even Gulliver's Travels; but now all were awake, and for the first time were we as one. They had found something of vital interest Themselves! And the prevalent misunderstanding concerning them I lost consciousness of the physisal individualities before me, and sensed only the vibrant energy of Youth that radiated from earnest eyes in its eagerness to defend itself and be understood.

"Now, I'll tell you what I'll do," I told them. "We'll skip that Preface to the English Dictionary by Samuel Johnson, if each one of you will write for me your sincere opinion of the youth of today. As I shall not ask you to read in class what you have written, you need not be afraid to give your thoughts frank expression."

I gave my other four classes the same assignment, and that evening I had one hundred and forty sets of brains fermenting for original thoughts. When the papers came in I was surprised by the truth and sincerity of some of the ideas. Of course somewhat more than half of the themes were of the stereotyped variety, it being impossible for the average student to think creatively after being deluged by the modern school system.

The spirit of Youth is embodied in the thoughts of these young persons. It is independent, fearless self-assertive, and to no one does it blow in obeisance. The Youth of the "country" is familiar with the jargons of countryfolk. In the background of its consciousness are the memories of shady woods, the autumnal odour of rotting leaves the vision of giant tree trunks, majectic and menacing and wild blackberry bushes sprawling over the countryside. It has breathed the thin cold air of the moors, has peered into murmuring streams and has slithered nonchalantly down muddy lanes. The Youth of the seaside towns and inland cities is similarly influenced by its own environment. Such is the Youth of this country, rash, adventuresome; but earnest in thought and eager for Meaning.

In the following papers you will notice that one has enmeshed in the thread of his thought a bit of truth; another has snatched a different morsel, which when considered in the aggregate, reveals the whole reflected there. Although the opinions of each must have been influenced by current discussion, his viewpoint is tinged by his innate personality, and is in keeping with his type of thinking and experience. The scientifically inclined solved the problem from that standpoint, the philosophers were somewhat more artistic, and the "good-time" girls and boys had ideas all their own.

New Outlook

First let us consider a thought or two of Howard, the cynic. You may fancy him resting comfortably, surveying you with one of those kind of sneaky Mona Lisa smiles, saying nothing, seeing everything—thinking this: :

"In picking up a daily newspaeye is some very large letters at the top, which are usually about someone being murdered, or a criminal being caught. But upon examining the small items below you will very often find an article that starts like this: Professor Know-all of the Groofy College says that Youth is declining. Smoking, drinking, and trying to make life a joke."

"On the other hand, a few columns away another article will read: Dr. Killem, A.B.C., X.Y.Z., states that bare legs and loose clothing make modern Youth very healthly and tend toward wholesome lives.

"You see other articles: Judge Hangem states that 99 per cent of Youth is no worse than in her day.

"The question is debated from every possible angle.

"In modern times your father and mother advise you against doing certain things and going to criminals are mere youths, both boys and girls. And the insidious thing about it is that four out of every five are under twenty years of age.

"Again you notice: President of the —League states that modern certain places and you do it anyway. In the olden days they were told that they couldn't do it and were locked in their room, but they opened the window, slid down the water spout and did it anyway. Which is the worst? The only solution is your own, because almost everyone has different views on such questions.

"It is a fact that the Youth of today are doing more shocking and perhaps more degrading things than were done by those in past generations, but whether it leads them to their downfall, or is for their welfare is not yet known.

"Don't believe everything you hear however, so in reading these comments use your own judgment and draw your own conclusions."

Must Have Liberty

Mabel, sharp-eyed and quick of wit, has the searching mind of the philosopher. Although somewhat naive, she believes in finding out things for herself. She writes:

"Who says we must be chained to old traditions? We are endowed by certain unalienable rights and among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Our life is like a plant that cannot live unless it has sunlight. We must have liberty both in body and mind.

"A man condemned to prison has a strong body when he enters, but what does confinent do to him? He comes out weakened in body and weaker in mind. Then why should we not have liberty? We are not criminals condemned to prison. We are Youth!

"Our pursuit of happiness is what has caused so much comment. But Youth is not to blame not that small part of it that always goes to extremes. It's these narrowminded preachers and old maids that need criticism. When a person lies down to rest on a summer day, he chooses the pleasantest spot he can find; so modern Youth chooses its own road of happiness. We say: bare legs for comfort; few clothes for coolness, liberty and speed; laughter, barrels of it—the echo of Youth!

"What good does all this criticism do? It does not sink in. We turn a deaf ear. We want to find out How? When? Why? Where? likes a small child that takes a clock to pieces to see what makes the wheels go round. Our forefathers did not take advice. If they had, Britain would never have progressed.

Young Rebel

"This new spirit that Youth has created is the beginning of something which will prove invaluable to the world."

Behold the viewpoint of Bartlett. He has given nervous indigestion to pedagogues all the way from the kindergarten to college. He is a thorn in any bunch of roses: the most aggravating and the most charming boy I ever knew. Not more than one glance is needed to learn how little he is worried about the syntax of grammar.

"The Youth of to-day! This seems to be the general cry of everyone except the younger generation themselves. Middle-aged people of the generation grown up, are foremost in presenting their views on the subject. The past generation, older people, do not seem to think that the world is doomed, but they realise as will the others later, that it is just the same old story over and over.

"The cry is jazz, the root of all evil. In older times they did not have jazz, but the music they did have was just as effective. They must expect that with recent developments such as sports cars, 'talkeis', television, other changes must take place.

"In the earlier times they went riding in the horse carriages, which were slower and less pulse-quickening, and less liable to accidents but served the same purpose. Movies show wild, and more brutal stuff. We are all like monkeys in a way; we copy what we see. Dance halls have increased with jazz. The exciting rhythm of dance music is contagious. We are accustomed to it though and it does not affect us as it does the older people. Things that are taboo have a great deal of attraction for us, that's why the younger generation likes to drink. It is not because they like the stuff, it's because it has a charm all its own. They kid themselves into thinking they like it.

More Freedom

"Everywhere people are having more freedom than before. Women have a voice in the government of our country, and are more free in every way, about the home, their dress, and their actnions. Before young people did not have the freedom that they now have. It is just because everything has changed.

"The reason that some boys and girls like to smoke is because they knew at first that they weren't supposed to and wanted to be per the first thing to take your we are. We have learned the truth of that statement, 'Be yourself.'

smart, to appear grown up, and then it became ahabit and they couldn't give it up.

"But all in all they are no worse then it became a habit and they ly do the same things in a different way and there are more ways than one to express oneself."

Watch Your Step

The following presents a slightly different view. It was written by a budding actor, who can compose an ode to his girl friend's eyebrows with more ease than he can solve an algebra problem.

First we are born and then we come into the state of learning, and everything we see or hear we put away for future use, be it good or bad. Our mind is like a film upon which all things are photographed. Then we reach the state of Youth and we strain at the leash. 'Be careful my son, the ways of the world are wicked; therefore, indulge not too deeply in them!' With a laugh we are away. But we slowly wear off the newness from youth, and finally we discard it and turn to the deeper matters of the world. But until then let us flame out in all our joy and fastidiousness.

"If Youth is not held back in some way, it will no doubt, follow the path of virtue. If restrained it is like a dog that has been chained up all day. When untied in the evening, he rushes through the garden and ruthlessly tears up the carrots, kicks over the cabbages, and rolls in the lettuce bed. A boy or girl who has been held under the thumb of a parent that thinks he is guarding his prodigy from the sinful world. gives him a sad awakening as soon as the thumb is lifted

"The best advice to Youth is: watch your step, honour your mother and father—but for goodness sake have a good time!

"Growth, atmosphere, health, activity, frivolity, and the desire to learn are the aim and creed of modern Youth. Youth grasps at learning and creates new things by which he may live. A youthful mind is a creative power that often brings out ideas that lead the scholars of the day."

Through The Ages

From many papers I culled the following thoughts. In some there is a bit of subtle psychology of which the writer was probably unaware, as for instance in these words: "The old dried-face maid who goes to her sewing circles and jabbers about the awful young people—but this person is the one who is forever looking for some man she can hook; she wishes she could be in the front seat of some car with a handsome man, but nothing so joyous ever happened in her life."

In another paper I found the evolution of "necking". "Our grandmother, when she went out with some gentleman, went 'counting.' Then the next generation came along and when a girl went out with a fellow, it was "spooring." Now comes modern youth and it goes pitting." It is just the same but great-grandmother would have hysterics, if she was accused of going 'petting.'

A more quiet thoughtfulness is expressed in the following.

"The older generation were too likely to evade the truth or to accept unquestioningly the advice of their forefathers; now the young people are attempting to find the truth for themselves, blindly at times for parents very often by their prudery and refusal to understand, have lost our confidence and respect.

"The real desire of people of all ages has been happiness. Man is so constituted that to be happy he must have some kind of faith. Faith is expressed in entousiasm. One cannot ignore the boundless enthusiasm of the rising generation. It is this capacity to work and play enthusiastically that will make them superior.

Only School

"Why worry! The experiences of these irredeemable young people are placing them in a position to help unravel every one of life's peculiar and baffling problems. Experience is the only school in which fools and children can learn. We must try—and fail, to make the final victory really worth the race. So—live, sing, and laugh, and even cry, for then you can better appreciate laughter and song. Remember that time will not halt while you make up for lost youth.

"Just dance while the music plays!

These last thoughts I took from the paper of Dolores, a flirt.

"We have learned that although a girl wields a lipstick instead of a knitting needle, she may be morally as pure as her grandmother. Also a girl can be just as nice if she "jives" as her mother was when she waltzed to 'My Darling Clementine'. Our boy friends think no less of us because we wear fewer clothes, than our grandfathers did of grandma when they saw her ankles peep primly from beneath three starched petticoats.

"We have our own moral code, but if you examine it closely, it bears a very close resemblance to that of yesterday and that of centuries ago. There are certain standards we have lived up to during the Ages, and probably will continue to do so until the end of time. In the meantime we are building up a stronger generation for to-morrow. We gain physical strength and endurance through our tennis, football, swimming, hiking, and dancing, which few enjoyed in earlier times. Why should people declare that we are living in dissipation because we do not spend much time at home, when usually it is spent to a much better advantage? We do not sail behind false colours; we only ask to be liked for what

"No longer that old idea of boys being wicked animals whom one must not dare to be alone with unchaperoned. We are brought up to enjoy the companionship of boys and we look upon them as brothers and pals.

"After our youthful playtime, we will take up the tasks our elders have left us. We will be the fathers and the mothers of tomorrow and then we will caution our children and spend anxious nights worrying over their giddy ways.

Caution

"But remember, you sisters of mine, when you have a little girl, you don't want her companions to chide her on having a mother who was the best petter in her day, or a dad who was known as a 'wolf'.

So when we have our pleasures and take advantage of our newly found freedom, let's enjoy it to the utmost, but remember that our mothers know best, even if it is hard to believe so now, when they caution us not to throw away the most precious thing of youth."

After listening to Youth we may decide that after all, we are partly to blame for the present chaotic state of affairs; that perhaps we are behind the times in properly directing the enthusiasm of Youth. Forty-five must learn to keep abreast with Seventeen. The difficulty arises from the fact that we cannot realise how truth changes; that the truth of yesterday is not necessarily the truth of today. Truth at any time is only the latest conclusions of the human mind. We must be continually remodelling our conceptions. The Gods of Olympus managed the Greeks well enough, but they would have more difficulty with us.

This is Spring; the world is full of sunlight and flowers. As I look down a sweep of hill, I realise that I have poorly expressed my thoughts. Many nibbled at the bait I cast, then slipped back into the Subconscious; others I was unable to capture on paper. But if, after reading this attempt, you are a little less harsh in your criticism of Seventeen, a trifle more in sympathy with his antics, I shall not be sorry I wrote these pages this morning instead of going for a ramble.

U.K. French Differences On Schuman Plan

BRITAIN UNWILLING TO ACCEPT SCHEME IN FULL

PARIS, May 28. (PTI-Reuter).

DIFFERENCES between Britain and France over the proposal to form a European coal and steel pool under a supra-national high authority have come to a head during the Whitsun weekend.

After receiving Britain's reply to the French invitation to take part in the merger negotiations, a spokesman of the French foreign office said on Saturday night "there still exists a distinct difference between the views of London and Paris".

The British reply indicated that at this stage the British Government had no intention of being committed to a position in which it would be possible to submit counter-proposals on amendments of substance.

AGREEMENT FIRST

According to a spokesman of the Ministry to a spokesman of the ch Government felt that there must be agreement before negotiations start on the principle of a common high authority with powers overriding the Governments in the field of coal and steel production if they are to have a chance of success.

At the same time the spokesman said the French Government was not in any way asking other Governments to commit themselves to reaching ultimate agreement in the proposed negotiations.

The differences between London and Paris in the approach to the proposed European coal and steel merger were reflected during the week-end discussions of the annual Congress of the French Socialist Party.

OPPOSITION

Foremost protagonist for M. Schuman's plan was ex-Cabinet Minister M. Andre Philip. He thought it was essential to abolish customs barriers between France and Germany, failing which Germany might be forced to turn east as such the only practical way to prevent this was the Schuman Plan.

Opposition to the plan was led by former Minister of Interior, M. Jules Moch. He said the proposed pool negotiations must not be allowed to become an instrument of anti-British policy and there must be no Franco-German tete a tete.

He was afraid of the repercussions on wage levels and employment in France owing, he said, to lower wages and higher productivity in Germany.

Urgent Need For Reforming Delinquent Children

PANDIT NEHRU URGES FOR SYMPATHETIC APPROACH

NEW DELHI, May 28 (PTI-Reuter)

PRIME MINISTER, Pandit Nehru said here today that children were the wealth of a nation and it was the duty of the society to take good care of them. Referring to the system of convicting small children for petty or other offences Pandit Nehru said that he could not understand how any body could tolerate "shutting up small children in jail and destroying their lives".

It should be the endeavour of every society to uplift children who either through neglect or unfortunate home life led astray.

Pandit Nehru who was speaking at the annual function of the Children's Aid Society, deprecated the tendency among the people to look to the Government for everything. The citizens had also a responsibility to fulfil which, he added, they often forgot.

Children for petty offences should never be taken to law courts where the atmosphere was too legalistic and matter of fact. Children needed kindness, love and a sympathetic treatment. "Whatever crime children commit", Pandit Nehru said "they should not be punished for it but considerately dealt with and reformed. I do not know how any law can punish a five-year-old boy. It is simply horrible to even contemplate it. Even if a child were to commit every offence cognisable under the Indian Penal Code, he should not be punished for it. Nobody would like to send his five-year-old son to jail for committing a mistake or an offence. Yet, that was the fate several neglected children met at the hands of the law courts for petty offences".

It was the moral duty of citizens in every city to see that no children suffered for want of proper care, and roamed the streets wasting their lives. Their endeavour should be to make these children good citizens.

NO CRIMINALS

Alluding to the whole scheme of punishment for offences, Pandit Nehru said that the better thing would be to punish those who fell sick rather than those who committed petty offences. The latter should be "treated and reformed".

Continuing Pandit Nehru said: "In my opinion 85 per cent of the jail population in India consists of people who are not the criminal type. Even the 15 per cent cannot be called as being inherently criminal. They have been made so perhaps by circumstances. The average convict serving a five or ten-year sentence is far better than many men outside the jail. That has been my experience after seeing convicts in India's several jails.

COMMON FRONT WITH CHURCH OF S. INDIA

Decision Postponed

LONDON, May 28 (PTI-Reuter): Opposition by high churchmen who fear a drift away from Rome has led to a five-year-postponement by the Church of England of its attempt to reach a common front with the Church of South India, the Independent Sunday newspaper, the Observer, stated today.

According to the Observer the unification of a million Christians in South India has faced the Anglican Church in Britain with the theoretical problem that the Church of South India is now neither episcopal nor non-episcopal.

"In dealing with this subject the Church of England is hampered by those who fear that any attempt to enter ino relations with a Church of such a broad character would lead to a betrayal of the Anglican tradition and to a lessening of their prospects of an eventual liaison with Rome", the Observer commented.

It added "we believe that a majority of lay members of the Church of England would if consulted, choose to emphasises their protestantism and move towards an eventual union with the Free Churches (of Britain) even at the cost of causing some theological discomfort to the higher churchmen".

FOREIGN FINANCE TO PROMOTE HEALTH

UN Sub-Commission's Recommendations

LAKE SUCCESS. May 28 (PTI-Reuter)

FOREIGN Finance for backward areas should be used not only for industrial and commercial projects, but for such relatively less productive enterprises as improveing health, sanitation, transport and communications, a United Nations sub-commission declared today.

In its report to the Economic and Social Council, the Sub-Commission on Economic Development cited these "slow yielding but high cost" socio-economic projects as examples of "the problem and challenge of economic development".

The Sub-Commission, under the presidency of Dr. V. K. R. V. Rao, of India, made a series of practical proposals for using "Point Four" aid and other methods of financing the development of backward areas.

In its section on long-term socio-economic projects, the report declared, "any substantial acceleration even of admittedly sound projects will depend in considerable measure on the extent to which the prerequisite base of 'social and economic overhead capital' is created and broadened in the under-developed countries".

NOMINAL BURDEN

The report said these long-term projects should be financed so as to impose only a nominal burden of annual payments.

It noted that this would require foreign loans with longer maturities and lower interest rates than those available from existing sources.

The Sub-Commission rejected Dr. Rao's proposal for the creation of a United Nations Economic Development Administration now.

It recommended that the International Monetary Fund and other interested agencies should study this whole subject "in terms of the practical conditions under which such guarantees could be made effective".

IN A CHINA SHOP

By Taurus

ONCE more there is a bustle in all newspaper offices over the S.S.C. examination results. The first signs are the adverusements of tuition classes, encouraging the boys who have not hit the target, to try again and to arm themselves with the teaching of these guaranteed success institutions. But apart from the bad taste—one brilliant advertiser begins with an admonition, "Don't commit suicide, try again"—there is the question of bad psychology. A student who, after one unsuccessful attempt, requires special assistance to pass at the next attempt, may as well give it up. Non-matriculates pardon the old style, have done just as well. For years, I was rendered miserable by a boy who was known to be the dullest of us all, who had left school and joined the railways. He was posted as ticket-examiner at my station on the suburban railways and every time I passed him, it was twice a day, I had to endure his jibes. He was earning a hundred chips all the years I was plodding through school and college and he felt that there was something a good man was born with which no amount of education could give him.

Failure is not absolute. And, moreover, if the schools, after manhandling a child for ten long years, five hours a day for every day, cannot get him up to the passing point, then the fault is certainly not with the child. I think that periodically someone, fairly responsible, ought to get together the teachers of all failed students and put them through the grill. Better still a periodic summons calling upon a teacher to show cause why he should not be suspended from his profession for failing to teach his subject properly, would go a long way to settle the educational system.

When I was in school, I was plagued by a particularly nasty specimen of the teaching fraternity who could think of nothing better than to ask us to write out a thousand or several thousand times what we should or should not have done For one blessed year we were free from his presecutions because he was courting the girl who taught the infant class. In fact, we spent quite a lot of time plotting the graph of true love. But one fine day—the best of things must end some time—we learnt with a shock that he had married her elder sister who was teaching at the girls' school across the road. We had passed through both their hands and we heartily agreed that he had done well because, as my classmate, aged twelve and so two years wiser than the rest of us, put it, the older girl was the less flighty type. Only we failed to see what she saw in him. And as his brutalities continued to manifest themselves in a worse form, we grew even more perplexed.

I have never been able to take my studies very seriously. Beginning a superficial education by going to school on my first working day with all my books left behind, I have never wavered in my opinion that an examination is the test of the teacher rather than the taught. More conscientious teachers share my view, take the laudable precaution of disclosing the questions when they are the examiners. I have been uniformly unlucky in this that no teacher of mine has ever attained the right stage of sensitivity.

But I had, I recall with some pleasure, an old friend who was a bit of an astrologer. In between the times when he was busy predicting his own end wrongly, he indulged in a little predicting on my account. There was a fairly difficult examination ahead of me and I had the chance of consulting him about the result. "The result," he said, after adjusting his steel-rimmed spectacles on the tip of his nose and working the oracle, "is in your hands. What doubt is there? You will have a walk over."

A word to the wise, it has been said, is enough; to the unwise even half a hint is more than sufficient. I threw my books metaphorically speaking out of the window. There was plenty to distract a student's attention and I was distracted. When the results were in my hands, unlike good old Abu Ben Adam, I was nowhere in the picture.

The old boy was flustered as all false prophets should be. But he took himself to his books and charts again. "If you apply yourself diligently," he said, "next time you are sure to pass. Your constellation is Taurus. What more do you want?"

I was quite upset. I told him that it required no seer to say that, if I read, I would pass. I knew it because our examiners were not fools. As I spoke up for these miserable beings, I began to feel a real grouse against the fake astrologer for doubting their intelligence.
